Introduction

Welcome to Raw Love. Our purpose is to assist you in attaining your full potential and optimal health whilst participating in nutrition coaching with our Raw Food Certified Nutritional Couch. The Raw Love program is gluten, dairy and sugar free and no animal products are consumed, with the exception of honey.

The Raw Love program is not suitable for the following clients:

- a) Clients recovering from medical surgery or therapy;
- b) Clients under active treatment of chemotherapy, radiation and/or chronic depression.

Clients who currently use prescription medication, and in particular for the treatment of diabetes (insulin), post MI (myocardial infarction), stroke, anticoagulants (Warfarin/Heparin) and anti-platelet medication should enter the Raw Love program under close supervision of their professional health care practitioner.

This website provides you with information about us, our services and facilities and related projects and initiatives. Our advice is not a substitute for medical counselling. It is important to note that each person is unique and we urge you to seek appropriate professional advice before acting on any information contained on our website.

Nut and seed allergies are a contra-indication to this program and should not be entered into by such persons.

Certain detox supplementation is supplied and recommended within this program. Even though no adverse affects are known to these with the exceptions as mentioned above, please ensure the written consent from your primary health care provider before commencing this program.

Your health is the no1 priority during this journey. Please do not withhold any information which could impact on your results or cause your health any harm.

I am not a health care practitioner and under no circumstance claim to be able to replace your primary health care practitioner.

Allow me to guide you as a Nutritional couch with the guidance and approval of your primary health care provider on this beautiful journey to self empowered optimal health.
